AIMS OF THE DOCUMENT

The aims of this document are to:

- define the structure of the programme;
- specify the programme award titles;
- identify programme and level learning outcomes;
- articulate the regulations governing the awards defined within the document.

AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

The aim of the programme is to equip students with the knowledge, skills and understanding they need to work in an industry which is multiplatform and increasingly digitally focused. Students are prepared for print, radio, mobile, data, social, TV and online roles in newspapers and magazines, websites, social media, audio or video. They are equipped to be sports and convergence specialists and trained to be agile enough to respond to new technologies and consumer/audience behaviours.

The programme aims to develop graduates who can produce sports journalism in a legally, ethically and critically-informed manner who also have developed understanding of key issues in journalism at a time of technological, structural and regulatory change. The degree aims to produce graduates who combine the critical faculties that derive from a traditional academic degree with the professional skills and flexibility needed to get the best jobs in journalism.

The degree has grown from the successful and respected BA Multimedia Journalism degree and similarly aspires to provide graduates who are digitally focused, innovative and critically aware. We aim to produce sports journalists who not only satisfy readers and employers but who seek to create new, diverse and creative ways of sports storytelling which engage readers via interactivity, social media, data journalism and data visualisation, web documentaries, blogs and apps. Students will be encouraged to innovate and experiment with new technologies, new platforms and new ways of getting a story across to a reader who might in turn engage with them as a citizen journalist. The scope of ambition for our journalists far exceeds the skills-based demands of the NCTJ and continues to be a key source of interest and communication with employers.

The programme aims to offer the vital core skills needed by professional journalists in an increasingly challenging 24hr rolling news environment. Indeed, the BAMMSJ students will share the same delivery as the BAMMJ students in L4 to ensure the best possible journalistic foundations are laid. From L5 onwards, the BAMMSJ students will be required to take bespoke and mandatory sports units.

The programme aims to promote the employability of our students. Students will be encouraged to showcase their sports journalism to the public from year 4 onwards via the externally-facing learning and teaching platform Buzz, via the online Rock website, via the campus radio station Nerve, via the campus magazine Nerve and via their own social media channels and websites. The students may also engage with Fresher, the in-house digital publishing project.

Importantly, the programme will encourage real world engagement via convergence news days and require extensive coverage of local sports including AFC Bournemouth and other clubs. Students will be required to report on a range of sports and acquire considerable knowledge about them.

The programme will align with professional requirements and scrutiny by the NCTJ; discussions have already commenced with the NCTJ and an accreditation visit provisionally agreed for February 2021. The BAMMJ programme has been held up as a gold standard course by the NCTJ; the sports degree aspires to achieve the same accolade.

Outcomes from this programme are: high employability figures for our students; adaptable students prepared for a career path which will be ever evolving; students with the academic skills needed for lifelong learning; critically aware and questioning students; and a proud alumni who feed back into the course sharing their experience, knowledge and contacts, most visibly at the annual Journalism Careers Forum at Bournemouth.

ALIGNMENT WITH THE UNIVERSITY'S STRATEGIC PLAN

The BA Multimedia Sports Journalism degree is informed by the BU2025 Strategy of Fusion, in that students are offered a programme that is linked to practice and industry and informed by the latest research. In further accordance with Fusion, this degree also offers students the opportunity to graduate with a degree that makes them highly employable since they have both research and sports industry experience.

In addition, BU2025 values are integral to the degree. The staff will continue to strive for excellence in how we work and support students; we will continue to value and respect diversity; we will continue to be imaginative, innovative and creative (hence incorporation of new innovative units); and we will continue to take responsibility for our actions. Indeed, the BAMMJ degree already leads the way with sustainability. The BAMMJ degree was the first journalism degree to offer the BAFTA Albert The Applied Skills for a Sustainable Media Industry Certificate; the first students graduated in 2020. We will continue this valuable work with the new BAMMSJ degree.

LEARNING HOURS AND ASSESSMENT

Bournemouth University taught programmes are composed of units of study, which are assigned a credit value indicating the amount of learning undertaken. The minimum credit value of a unit is normally 20 credits, above which credit values normally increase at 20-point intervals. 20 credits is the equivalent of 200 study hours required of the student, including lectures, seminars, assessment and independent study. 20 University credits are equivalent to 10 European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) credits.

The assessment workload for a unit should consider the total time devoted to study, including the assessment workload (i.e. formative and summative assessment) and the taught elements and independent study workload (i.e. lectures, seminars, preparatory work, practical activities, reading, critical reflection).

Assessment per 20 credit unit should normally consist of 3,000 words or equivalent. Dissertations and Level 6 Projects are distinct from other assessment types. The word count for these assignments is 5,000 words per 20 credits, recognising that undertaking an in-depth piece of original research as the capstone to a degree is pedagogically sound.

Specific to BA Multimedia Sports Journalism, most units are worth 20 credits with the the L6 Major Multimedia Sports Project and Sports Dissertation worth 40 credits each. This is compliant with the university's semester system.

STAFF DELIVERING THE PROGRAMME

Students will usually be taught by a combination of senior academic staff with others who have relevant expertise including – where appropriate and according to the content of the unit – academic staff, qualified professional practitioners, demonstrators/technicians and research students.

INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES – AND HOW THE PROGRAMME ENABLES STUDENTS TO ACHIEVE AND DEMONSTRATE THE INTENDED LEARNING OUTCOMES

A: Subject knowledge and understanding This programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding of:	The following learning and teaching and assessment strategies and methods enable students to achieve and to demonstrate the programme learning outcomes:
A1 Understand relevant theories, concepts and principles relevant to print, broadcast and online journalism.	Programme overview:

Programme Specification - Section 2

A2 Have a detailed knowledge and understanding of the historical, social, economic and political contexts within which sports journalists operate. A3 Place their professional journalistic knowledge within the regulatory and legal frameworks of the UK, and EU, including human-rights legislation. A4 Define problems and devise and evaluate possible solutions, and to solve both routine and unfamiliar problems in ethical dimensions and within professional codes of conduct. A5 Understand the multi-disciplinary nature of journalism and the need to apply knowledge from a range of subject areas. A6 Integrate evidence from a range of sources to support findings and hypotheses to produce a significant piece of original research into an aspect of journalism. A7 Have knowledge and understanding to be "reflective practitioners". A8 Understand how languages and images are used to inform, persuade, and form attitudes, and how news is manufactured. A9 Evaluate the dynamic interaction of journalism and society against a background of structural, regulatory, technological, social and economic change. A10 Show an understanding of the structure of UK local and central government and the economy relevant to journalism.	(Note: Full details of assessment strategies and methods for each of the three BAMMSJ Levels follows in next section) Central to our BAMMSJ and BAMMJ assessment strategy is the use of a diverse range of methods. External partners including examiners and industry professionals have noted the emphasis on core skills of journalism, technical skills, digital engagement and intellectual rigour assessed in multiple and innovative ways. The assessment methods used include timed news tests, critical essays, annotated bibliographies, fieldwork, individual and group presentations, reflective and peer assessment, industry pitches, multimedia poster campaigns, debate essays, a range of portfolios (content analysis, investigative, artefacts), online and multimedia artefacts (blogs, written articles, videos, podcasts, wikis), photo-essays, infographics. Our assessments are designed to address specific Intended Learning Outcomes, ensuring that there is a clear level-to-level progression. For example at Level 4, Broadcast 1 students are made familiar with classic competencies and practical skills in preparation for Broadcast Sports Journalism which extends these skills further into areas such as the production of broadcast sports packages. They also gain further experience of news days in Broadcast Sports Journalism which, in turn, prepares them for the L6 Converged Journalism unit. Cross-unit synergies have been carefully considered. For example, Broadcast Sports Journalism intertwines with the L5 Sports World unit.
B: Intellectual skills This programme provides opportunities for students to:	Level 6 assessments are highly advanced; in more practical or creative units they require students to produce work of professional standard and often to engage with specific target markets and industry requirements, while in more academic units they require a level of debate and reflection that underpins the dissertation as well as their future progression to postgraduate study. The new BAMMSJ degree will benefit from an assessment strategy that will be extending the use of online submission and diverse forms of feedback via Turnitin. Overall, the assessment methods utilised in the framework are highly
B1 Evaluate critically and apply journalistic knowledge and skills flexibly and creatively to the changing demands of journalism. B2 Analyse and synthesise information. B3 Plan, execute and report on a project involving original research. B4 Integrate and evaluate information from a variety of sources. B5 Analyse critically published work in the field of journalism.

Programme Specification - Section 2

	The assessment of knowledge is by 100% coursework, including a dissertation (A4), major production projects (A1-A3), essays and reports (A1, A2).
B: Intellectual skills This level provides opportunities for students to:	The following learning and teaching and assessment strategies and methods enable students to achieve and to demonstrate the level learning outcomes:
B1 - Critical review, consolidation and extension of a systematic and coherent body of knowledge B2 - The analysis of new data and situations with minimum guidance and using an appropriate range of techniques B3 - The critical evaluation and review of information, evidence or concepts from a range of sources, in terms of their reliability, validity and significance B4 - The incorporation of a critical ethical dimension in their work B5 - The transformation of raw data and initial concepts towards a given purpose with minimum guidance B6 - The exercise of appropriate judgment in a number of complex planning, design, technical and management functions related to journalistic and academic processes and products	Learning and teaching strategies and methods (referring to numbered Intended Learning Outcomes): Intellectual skills (B1-B6) are developed mainly through tutorials providing guidance for further individual study, focusing on the dissertation, and self-directed project work, which encourages original thinking. There are also lectures, workshops and group-work activities. Assessment strategies and methods (referring to numbered Intended Learning Outcomes): Intellectual skills (B1-B6) are assessed by coursework. Continuously assessed coursework across a range of platforms provides students with the opportunity to consolidate their journalistic knowledge and skills to a professional level. B1, B3, B4 and B6 are assessed in the dissertation. B2-B6 are assessed by means of the major project. Analytical and evaluative ability (B1, B3, B4, B5) is assessed by essays and reports.
C: Practical skills This level provides opportunities for students to:	The following learning and teaching and assessment strategies and methods enable students to achieve and to demonstrate the level learning outcomes:
C1 - Plan, produce and present projects demonstrating in depth journalism suitable to be published or broadcast in newspapers, magazines, TV, radio and on-line environments C2 - Create and evaluate original research and relate to prior work with appropriate references C3 - Be aware of the changing professional demands of journalism and how to respond to these with flexibility and creativity C4 - Demonstrate a detailed understanding of social and cultural debates affecting journalism	Learning and teaching strategies and methods (referring to numbered Intended Learning Outcomes): Subject-specific skills (C1-C7) are promoted through lectures, workshops and group work activities. Tutorials are also a key part of the learning and teaching strategy, providing advice and guidance for students to manage their own project work. WORK BASED LEARNING (WBL) AND PLACEMENT ELEMENTS

For the BA (Hons) Full Time 3-year award, graduation is conditional on completing a four-week placement. Placement is not defined as a credit-bearing unit and the requisite four weeks can be commenced in L4. Students are advised to complete placement before entry into L6 to ensure full engagement with the two showpiece L6 artefacts – the Major Multimedia Project and Dissertation.

Placement is assessed on a pass/fail basis using a logbook and employer appraisal. Students must have completed their placement before the final Assessment Board.

To complete a placement students must:

- Complete four weeks satisfactory work placement at a journalism outlet or agreed company
- Complete the placement logbook satisfactorily; this may include assignments relating to the nature of their work and the organisation they are working in
- Satisfactorily meet the performance criteria of the placement as determined by the completed assessment forms from the company, the Placement Development Advisor and the student.

Alternatively, students have the option of undertaking a sandwich degree by completing a minimum 30-week placement between Levels 5 & 6, after which they would return to complete their studies the following year.
