AIMS OF THE DOCUMENT

The aims of this document are to:

- define the structure of the programme;
- specify the programme award titles;
- identify programme and level learning outcomes;
- articulate the regulations governing the awards defined within the document.

AIMS OF THE PROGRAMME

This programme aims to develop individuals with a high level of understanding and insight into empirical and theoretical issues into graduates who can:

- demonstrate a critical understanding of Psychology as an empirical science;
- develop a well-founded knowledge and critical understanding of the mind and behaviour through learning about all areas of Psychology;
- acquire a range of research skills and methods to investigate behaviour, culminating in an ability to conduct research independently;
- acquire a range of communication and interaction skills, so they are able to conduct themselves professionally
- apply their knowledge effectively in a variety of contexts.

It has been developed with regard to a number of points of reference, particularly QAA Psychology Subject Benchmark Statement (2016), the British Psychological Society Accreditation Handbook (2017) and Code of Ethics & Conduct (2018) and the British Association for Counselling Psychologists Ethical Framework (2016). The programme encompasses all areas of psychology and counselling identified by these bodies. It provides a sound theoretical underpinning and practical experience in both psychology and counselling, plus empirical methods to enable students to begin a career in professional psychology. Additionally, the counselling element will 1) enhance communication skills and professionalism and 2) enable students to have a real understanding of the profession of Counselling Psychology and how it can be used in other careers working with people. For example, the degree will provide a basis for postgraduate studies for professional or academic careers, primarily in Counselling Psychology, but also in other applied areas (e.g. clinical, educational, occupational, forensic and health psychology). It will also equip students for a range of other careers including counselling, social work, teaching, management consultancy, advertising, health promotion and personnel work.

Psychology at Bournemouth University aims to bring together research, education and professional practice by:

- a) informing and educating students about Psychology and Counselling;
- b) developing their understanding of research in the fields of Psychology and Counselling;
- c) developing their communication skills and professionalism;
- d) enabling them to apply this knowledge in a range of practical and professional contexts.

The BSc (Hons) Psychology with Counselling programme is accredited by the British Psychological Society (BPS) as conferring eligibility for the Graduate Basis for Chartered Membership (GBC) of the BPS. It is important to note that GBC can only be awarded if the student obtains a pass for the dissertation and a Lower Second Class (2:2) classification or above.

ALIGNMENT WITH THE UNIVERSITY'S STRATEGIC PLAN

The BSc Psychology with Counselling programme is informed by and aligned with Bournemouth University's 2018-2025 strategic plan and the fusion of excellent teaching, world-class research and practice that is at the heart of the institution's visions and values. The staff (both academics and practitioners) delivering the programme are actively engaged in research and professional practice, permitting opportunities for co-creation and co-production of knowledge between staff and students. Additionally, teaching excellence is ensured by the sharing of good teaching practice across the programme (via staff handbooks that guide teaching and feedback protocols). Moreover, external practitioners contribute to the programme to both provide information on what Counselling psychologists do and teach counselling skills (as well as having chartered psychologists with counselling skills on the programme teaching team).

Consistent with the principles of Fusion, students further engage in a range of innovative coursework activities, a pedagogical approach well aligned with the FLIE's current delivery focus, offering students the opportunity to learn by engaging in a series of tasks that have a theoretical/practical focus (e.g., writing practical research reports). This range of assessment is designed to equip students with the full range of skills necessary to succeed in the field. Moreover, the programme fuses research, education and professional practice by: (a) informing and educating students about Psychology; (b) developing their understanding of psychological research; (c) developing their communication skills and professionalism; and (d) enabling them to apply this knowledge in a range of practical and professional contexts.

The Psychology Department, which all students on this programme will be part of, also supports global activities for students, with students having the opportunity to study abroad, in line with the University's Global Engagement Plan.

All Psychology with Counselling students also have the option of undertaking a placement year after completing Level 5 of the programme. For this particular programme, the placement is required to have content relevant to counselling. This industrial placement is assessed on a pass/fail basis and involves the completion of a minimum of 30 working weeks (at a minimum of 30 hours per week), the completion of placement logbook, and the submission of a placement assignment. Students are supported by a dedicated Psychology Placement Team and have access to a Placement Co-ordinator, Careers Advisor, Placement Tutor and Placement PAL (Peer Assisted Learning) Leaders as well as a Placement Development Advisor when they are out on Placement in their third year.

Further information on the BU 2012-18 strategic plan and the University's Fusion agenda can be found at: <https://www1.bournemouth.ac.uk/about/vision-values>

LEARNING HOURS AND ASSESSMENT

Bournemouth University taught programmes are composed of units of study, which are assigned a credit value indicating the amount of learning undertaken. The minimum credit value of a unit is normally 20 credits, above which credit values normally increase at 20-point intervals. 20 credits is the equivalent of 200 study hours required of the student, including lectures, seminars, assessment and independent study. 20 University credits are equivalent to 10 European Credit Transfer System (ECTS) credits.

The assessment workload for a unit should consider the total time devoted to study, including the assessment workload (i.e. formative and summative assessment) and the taught elements and independent study workload (i.e. lectures, seminars, preparatory work, practical activities, reading, critical reflection).

Assessment per 20 credit unit should normally consist of 3,000 words or equivalent. Dissertations and Level 6 and 7 Final Projects are distinct from other assessment types. The word count for these assignments is 5,000 words per 20 credits, recognising that undertaking an in-depth piece of original research as the capstone to a degree is pedagogically sound.

STAFF DELIVERING THE PROGRAMME

Students will usually be taught by a combination of senior academic staff with others who have relevant expertise including – where appropriate according to the content of the unit – academic staff, qualified professional practitioners, demonstrators/technicians and research students.

However, the following approved exception applies:

In accordance with the standards for accreditation of undergraduate, conversion and integrated Masters programmes by The British Psychological Society (BPS) to confer Graduate Basis for Chartered membership (GBC) of the BPS, marks on the Level 6 research project cannot be compensated (British Psychological Society Standards for the accreditation of undergraduate, conversion and integrated Masters programmes in psychology, section 2.1.4 h, page 13 (published 2019)).

WORK BASED LEARNING (WBL) AND PLACEMENT ELEMENTS

The programme includes an optional one-year work placement which occurs during the third-year of the programme and lasts for a minimum of 30 working weeks. The aim of this optional sandwich placement year is to give students experience of working within an appropriate professional environment, contributing to their potential employability in line with the Bournemouth University employability strategy. The programme also includes an optional 4-week, short-term placement that occurs between the end of the second-year and the start of the third-year. This optional short-term placement scheme aims to give students experience of working within an appropriate professional environment, contributing to their potential employability in line with the Bournemouth University employability strategy. On both placement schemes, students will utilise the skills and knowledge gained during the first two years of the programme in an appropriate work-based environment as they gain practical experience and apply a professional approach in the workplace.
